

June 10, 2005

RIKEN Center for Intellectual Property Strategies

The database and search system for patent information are open to the public free of charge

Starting from June 13, RIKEN Center for Intellectual Property Strategies opened to the public free of charge RIKEN Patent Information Database and Search System (R-BIGIN).

The information of about 1000 patents (including patent rights and inventions after publication) owned by RIKEN is open now and more patent data are planned to be opened in succession.

This search system features an easy access to the patents of interest using "Technomap Search" based on the industry and research classification in addition to the usual search methods by International Patent Classification (IPC) and by keywords. They can access in Japanese through the website of RIKEN Center for Intellectual Property Strategies . (<http://r-bigin.riken.jp> Refer to "Knowledge Show Window".)

For more information, please contact:

RIKEN Public Relations Office

Email: koho@riken.jp